COMMON HONESTY
WAS THE TOPIC

OF STRONG SERMON BY REV. J. C.
HAZEN.

MOST CONTEMPTIBLE MAN

Is Man Who Orders Things He Cannot Pay For—Liars Are Most Despised of God's People.

In the sermon at the United church yesterday morning, Rev. J. C. Hazen readily admitted that people who make pretenses of being more than they really are and make an especial drive at that class of citizens, called "doubtless," said he: "The one most contemptible person is the one who through pretense causes a mis-chance or a friend, or anyone else, and secure goods or money, knowing that they will not be able to pay for what they get, or that they will try to dodge paying for them."

The subject of the address was "Common Honesty," and the text was taken from the twelfth chapter of the book of Romans, the thirteenth verse,
which reads: "Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men."

"We must provide all things honest in the sight of all men. A couple of businessmen were talking in a restaurant the other day and one of them was overheard to say: 'Do you remember that fellow that you recommended to work for me?' 'Yes,' replied the other; 'how is he getting along?'
The reply was: 'He is one of the best men in the place, for whatever passes through his hands will cause no embarrassment on the part of anyone. He is absolutely honest.'"

"One of the greatest needs of the business world is common everyday honesty. The kind that applies to the small things as well as the great. To be honest in the small things is to be just as honest in the things that are larger."

"It is the small things which go to make up life. The great earth on which we live is made up of grains of sand. The rain which covers the face of the earth and which gathers in pools on the ground runs into the streams and from the streams into the river and from the river into the sea, and the greater part of the globe is composed of water, and can be divided. It can be split up into drops and even the drops are found to be composed of still smaller molecules."

"Everything that is concerned with the larger things of life is made up of smaller things. The second in itself is not a very long space of time but the seconds that have been ticked off
have made the centuries and will continue to do so."

"In the field of oratory it is the little things that have been done that make the polished speaker. It is the reading of pamphlets, books and other literature, and the constant practice which produces the orator. These may seem inconsequential at the time,
but at the end they count for much."

"You look out on the streets and you see a human being there who you call an outcast of society. Perhaps the man has been brought to the gateway by drinking. That man did not reach that condition in a day's time.
No; it was the thousands of drinks,
perhaps taken in a social way, that caused his condition. The thief and robber is made in the same manner
through the little dissipation and mistakes in early life."

"You have no doubt heard of the blacksmith living near the seaboard who had a reputation for making good anchors and chains and who made them so well that he could secure almost any price he asked for them because each link was made perfect. It is the links that make the chain. The big business concerns of the city realize that it is the little things that really count."

The packing houses and other corporations make fortunes turning into a good use things which smaller firms cannot use."

"The person most despised by God is a liar. How often it is that we make the mistake of trying to cover up some error we have committed with a lie. Saul lost his kingdom because he tried to tell a lie to God and men in the business world who are good workers are being constantly displaced by an honest man, because they do not live up to the truth."

"In the early Christian church the people gave all of their earnings above what they needed for themselves to the church. One of the members tried to lie to God by giving only one-half of it and pretending it was all of his contribution, and he was struck dead.
His wife was also stricken because she had helped about carrying out the lie. God's greatest abhorrence is for the person who will live a falsehood.
The most flagrant form of the lie is the little things. How many like to go out on the streets and among people and by their actions and sayings lead people to think that they are doing very high things, that they are giving more money than they really have or that their standing in the community is very high. They exaggerate and that is nothing else than that which is false."

"What a pathetic thing it is when something happens to show that what these persons have said is all wrong.
What a disgrace it is to them. Something is sure to happen when they pose in that manner. O, that we could have the spirit that Washington had when he owned up to having chopped down the tree when his father questioned him as to how it was cut down. The most contemptible person is the one who because of this poor and lying concerning his financial means will procure goods, when they know that they will not be able to pay for them."

"If there is a class of people who ought to keep their promises and do all things honest in the sight of all men, it is the Christians. Yet we find among them those who fall so woefully. It is a disgrace to the church.
I wish that this country were filled with men and women who would and could say, 'I can not lie.'"

"Not one of us can avoid a railway system, but we can juggle to the extent of putting into our pockets a few pennies that rightfully do not belong to us."

"Oh, that we could just take the Word of God and do as He would have us do. Because another man is dishonorable, is leading the wrong kind of a life, and is going to Hell, that is no reason why you should follow his example. It seems to me that you should avoid it for that reason.

"The Road to Happiness you will find is Common Honesty and Justice."
The Road to Eternal Life is that which Christ pointed out, the narrow difficult road of common honesty to Jesus and all men."

OPERATORS DISCUSS PLANS.

Expect to Decide on Policy for Settlement of Mine Troubles.

New York, Apr. 18.—The operators' committee of 11 anthracite coal company managers began its meeting in this city today to decide upon the policy the mine workers are to adopt towards the mine workers following the latter's refusal to renew the agreement which has been in force for the last six years.

It is known that three plans will be discussed, that of reverting to the wages and working conditions prevailing before the strike commission's award was effective, by which it is hoped to force the mine workers either into a strike or to sign the agreement; a suspension of work for several weeks, which is expected to allow the mine workers desire for renewing the agreement to result in their officials deciding to do so; and a plan of making the mine workers individually to sign an agreement and giving work only to those who do. This,
it is believed by those who propose it,
would result in 80 per cent. of the employees signing.

MAKE WAR ON MASHERS.

Mayor of Rolla, Mo., and Railroad Official Join Forces.

Rolla, Mo., Apr. 19.—By threatening to cause a fast freight train to pass through Rolla without stopping unless conditions at the depot were changed, the railroad forced the Rolla
city council to pass an ordinance resolving that the city should make war on the station platform. Mayor Struck back of Rolla, and Superintendent O'Hara of the Frisco, have joined forces to prevent young students at the state school from attracting attention of pretty girl passengers on the Frisco trains. Some of the means of attracting attention the ordinance prohibits are:

"The waving of hands, tipping of hats, calling and giving college yells."

ETERNAL LIFE
THROUGH JESUS

SON OF GOD ONLY MEANS OF
ETERNAL LIFE.

GOD'S MERCY INFINITE

The Means of Salvation Set Forth by
Rev. Willmann in His Sermon

Yesterday.
"He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself; he that loveth him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of His Son. He that hath the Son hath life; he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." These words, which make up the eleventh and twelfth verses of the fifth chapter of the first epistle general of John, were taken as the text of the sermon for the first Sunday after Easter by the Rev. Henry Willmann of the Trinity Episcopal Church.

"If a man of means and benevolent impulses should give to the inhabitants of some remote district a pension ground where they might be able to have a little fresh air and a slice of the green grass and trees
after a long day's work in the factories and where their children might be able to play instead of in the gutters, the messenger who brought the good tidings would be received with open arms and the deed of the good deed would be an earthly river is received with so much joy, what should be the feeling of the whole world in the tidings that are given in the epistle and set forth in the text."

The gift of God is not confined to one district, but applies to the whole world.
It should fill every heart with bliss and praise. Selfishness it helps men only through the short space of his earthly existence but through all time. Suppose the gift were to be set over against man's deserving. Man is a rebel against God. He has many times naught but ingratitude for the benefits
he has received at the hands of the Lord. All have sinned and the wages of sin is death. Contrast the earnings and deservings of man against God's mercy. "But, to the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses
though we have rebelled against Him." Neither have we played the value of the Lord to walk in the ways which He has set before us. God's mercy shines but the sin clearly against the black cloud of man's sin. "He that hath the Son hath life." In this was expressed the infinite love that God hath for man.

"The greatest proof of this great love was Christ's death. 'So God loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believed in Him might not perish but have everlasting life.' In comparison with the gifts of God, which are the sacrifice of His only Son and the gift of eternal life, the prizes of this transitory life
become as nothing."

After thus describing the loving kindness of God by contrasting it with the little beneficence of man, the priest went on to say that a fortunate of this can sometimes be found without merit. The faith in God that enables many to bear the sorrows of this life is an example. If the fortunate is precious, what will the full realization be? Man can not imagine one one-thousandth part of it. It is utterly beyond his conception. The love of God is the source of it all,
and He has given it to everyone to know the way to possess it. The gift of eternal life first comes through Christ. "He that hath the Son hath life." Christ is eternal life. Away from Him it is impossible for any man, no matter how good he may be, to possess it. This may seem hard to some, but since it is given it is His right to say how it shall be bestowed.
Faith is the instrument by which the soul welcomes this gift of grace, but grace is the gift of God and comes not through our own works or efforts.
It is the duty and most blessed privilege of man to deserve this wonderful gift of eternal life.

The evidence that man does appreciate this gift must be manifested in a life devoted to the service of God. He must, in brief, mortify his bad inclinations, envy, hatred, malice
and all uncharitableness, and cultivate the good graces, applying himself to the extension of God's kingdom upon earth. The whole life must bear witness. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father that is in heaven."

After describing the way for man to show his appreciation of God's most precious gift, the priest went on to sound a warning against delay. "Now is the day of salvation."

Wise Interrogating.

A faculty of wise interrogating is half a knowledge. For as Plato said:
"Whoever speaketh knoweth that which he seeketh for in a general nature; else how shall he know it when he hath found it?" And therefore, the larger your anticipation is, the more direct and comprehensive is your search.—Lord Bacon.

AT THE
PLAY HOUSES

The United Spanish War Veterans
will present their play, "True Americans," tonight at the Myers Theatre.
The boys have been working hard to draw a large crowd and it is hoped they will not fail in their efforts. The proceeds of the play are to be used to relieve certain members of the camp
who are sorely in need of assistance, and with so worthy a cause they should look for a large patronage. The play, "True Americans," is a military play throughout, and founded on the Spanish war. There are about 60 people used on the stage and as a whole the play is one that will please all corners. Mr. Kush, who is studying the piece, is an actor of years of experience and has produced this same play for a four weeks' run in Chicago
at McVicker's Opera House at the latter part of last season for the big newsboys' benefit.

Samuel Wileman of Edgerton Lucky in Getting Back Pocketbook Which Contained $175.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Wis., April 18.—A pocketbook containing $175, which was lost by Samuel Wileman last week, was found and returned to him by Harry Bohroyd, a farmer residing west of town. Mr. Bohroyd says the purse lying where Mr. Wileman had dropped it, but as his daughter had been standing near there he supposed that it was her property and took it home. When he reached home the discovery was made that the pocketbook did not belong to any of Mr. Bohroyd's family, and on learning who the rightful owner was, Mr. Bohroyd returned his property to him.

Business Minus Science.

The average English business man's sphere of vision is limited. He is not scientific, as compared with the American, German or Japanese merchant. Fire Destroyed Gordon's General Store in Juda And Scorched Other Structures.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Juda, Wis., April 18.—Fire breaking out in the department and general store of John Gordon at two o'clock this morning burned the building to the ground and threatened to destroy the entire village. The flames spread across the street from Gordon's and scorched the Fairbank store, the bank building and the Plaza Hotel. The origin of the blaze is unknown, but it may have arisen from a fire that was built in the stove yesterday. The loss on the building is unknown.

Valuable Woods of Papua.
Seventy-nine new woods, all valuable, have just been discovered in Papua (British New Guinea) by a Queensland government expert. Woods for cabinet-making and ornament, for boats, piles, railway carriages, gliders and many other uses are among those found. The best lie along the banks of the enormous Papuan rivers. The government at Port Moresby has decided to make a small charge for rent instead of leasing free, as in the case of agricultural lands.

AFTER SUFFERING
ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it."

I suffered from female trouble and painful periods for a year. I tried many doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. — Miss Emma Lutz, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

It is appropriate that Abraham Lincoln's face should be placed upon the new penny to be issued by the United States mint.

The penny is the coin of the common people.

And we are informed that the face of Lincoln on this coin will have a smile on it.

Lincoln seldom smiled. His life in many respects was a hard one, and his face was seamed with sorrows. When in repose those who looked upon it saw it was the saddest face they ever beheld.

The artist wanted to find one picture of Lincoln in the act of smiling.

After long search he found one photograph in which there was the suggestion of a smile.

The artist took that suggestion and studied out a facial expression such as Lincoln might have used while talking to children.

Lincoln smiling at a child!

The conception of the sculptor is a fine one. Lincoln was fond of children. They liked him. They looked into his face and with the insight of childhood saw the goodness in that sorrowful face.

Another significant feature in the history of the Lincoln penny is the history of the designer. Brunner came here from Paris in 1890 a penniless youth of twenty-one. Being unable to find anything else, he sold penny boxes of matches on the streets of New York until he could do better.

The coin of the poor—Lincoln's face smiling at a child—the designer who sold matches for a penny—Isn't that a true and triple apotheosis of Americanism?

Think of the channels through which the coin will go in the future years of the republic! Common hands, the kind of hands that Lincoln loved to grasp, will in millions of ways handle the humble coin.

The newsboy who holds his little capital for making change, the Sunday school child who brings its penny to the teacher, the cashier of the department store whose tray is filled with the shining penny, the gatherer up for the penny slot machine, the worn and feeble woman feeling with trembling hands in her scanty purse, the beggar of the streets, the organ grinder, the Salvation Army captain—all these will often see the image of Abraham Lincoln, and some will see also the lesson of his life.

It was a happy choice—the new penny with the Lincoln face.

Plea for Open Fireplace.

"If people would only learn to have open fires in their rooms, instead of converting them into hot-air boxes by means of furnaces, there would be fewer colds," said a physician. "Fireplaces and their chimneys are ventilators. To me the beauty of an open fire makes it worth having, but when you consider that it's a sanitary officer, constantly changing the air and driving out germs, it is hard to see how any one can prefer a furnace."

American Girls Responsible.

Probably the American woman is answerable for a good deal of the unrest among the daughters of France for she comes among them with all sorts of daring projects and perfectly lovely clothes. She marries their brothers, she studies art, music and literature in their country and she walks serenely on along the path of liberty, to the amazement of men, angels and the Parisian.—The Quaker.

SPECIAL OFFER FOR THIRTY DAYS

WILL SELL ONE THOUSAND PROPERTY OWNERS IN COUNTRY OR CITY IN ROCK COUNTY, WISCONSIN.

Since this offer was first made 822 property owners have purchased.

THE CUT SHOWS APPLE TREE ES.

I wish to state emphatically that when you buy nursery stock of me you do not have to pay for the goods until the second year. There are no obligations, in the way of money, or note, just the buyer's word given in regard to the agreement below.

This gives you all this summer's growth and you can see how they come through the winter, and after they start to grow the following spring you can pay for the goods if they are entirely as represented.

I can show you thousands of dollars worth of stock that is growing that was planted last spring and summer, and anyone who is at all skeptical as to the quality of stock I furnish will be taken around and shown the stock. I will show cherry and plum trees that were planted a year ago last fall that had specimen fruits last summer, likewise grapes and raspberries.

All roses, climbing, H. P. and rose trees that I furnish are of the most hardy varieties.

All roses I set out last spring bloomed very freely last season.

THE SPECIAL OFFER

Any first class, two year old fruit trees, berry bushes, grape vines, ornamental shade trees; or shrubbery at the following bargain prices:

TARIFF ON HOSIERY
The grant army of women throughout the country, organized to protest against the proposed increase of tariff on hosiery, will win in the fight, as the senate has already decided to report adversely on the increase, and recommend that the old Dingley rate continue in force.

This, on the face of it, looks like a victory, but the fact is developing that the little coterie of American manufacturers who control the market and who last year turned out $55,000,000 worth of goods, are responsible for the same which so disturbed the women of America.
The claim is made by men in position to know, that these manufacturers, fearing a reduction in the Dingley rate, which is practically prohibitive, influenced the house committee to report an increase, not expecting the measure to pass, but to raise a protest which would result in not disturbing existing conditions.
Under the Dingley bill there was less than $5,000,000 in hosiery imported last year and the American monopoly controlled the market making prices without competition under a "gentleman's agreement" and restricting production so as not to create a surplus.

There are a number of articles in the dry-goods and woolen line, which are subject to the same monopolistic conditions, and they represent a class of trusts which should be regulated by a reduced tariff.
The prices they are able to establish and maintain are exorbitant, and the people are obliged to pay tribute for the direct benefit of a handful of manufacturers.
If the tariff were reduced one-half on these lines of goods the government would derive many millions in revenue. American manufacturers would still be doing business at a profit, and all of the people would share in the advantages.
The republican party is committed to a reduction in the tariff, and the party will be held accountable for there are many evils of this class which need correcting.

COUNTY OPTION
Much disappointment is expressed because of the fate of the local option bill, which originated in the senate. Many good people are impressed with the notion that county option is a cure-all for intemperance and the short cut to reform.

It is well to remember, however, that laws on moral questions, in advance of public sentiment, are never enforced, and worse than useless. The county of Rock is a fair sample of several other counties in the state, where the city and urban population is about evenly balanced.
With a county option law it might be possible to vote out the saloon, as the rural vote is stronger than the vote of Janesville and Beloit, where public sentiment would favor license. What would be the result? Simply this: The county would pass a measure on city government, which it could not aid in enforcing, and the cities would be cursed with a dead letter law and illegal traffic without regulation.
The city of Beloit voted "wet" at the recent election, and no one doubts that Janesville would have done the same, had license been an issue.
Neither for the cities to pass whole-some regulatory laws, and then enforce them to the letter, than to be burdened with measures which they are powerless to enforce.

The legislature of Nebraska is now considering a law which provides that all saloons shall close at 7 o'clock in the evening. The license in Nebraska has been $1,000 for a number of years, and saloons are conducted without scruple, the same as any other business, while the proprietors are usually law-abiding citizens.
If the 7 o'clock closing law is passed it will be enforced, because public sentiment will endorse it. Laws of this kind are not unreasonable and they are the kind of laws which should be passed, until public sentiment demands more stringent measures.

The nation is passing through an era of regulation, and business men and methods have been in the limelight for the past four years. The saloon is feeling the pressure, the same as the railroads and other corporations have felt it. Many lines of business have been so disturbed as to become seriously crippled, and some of the laws passed have resulted in confiscation.

The saloon has no occasion to complain, for the business is in ill repute and so noted for lawlessness that public censure is heard on every hand. Yet it is infinitely better to regulate the traffic in cities, than to attempt to prohibit it by county option laws, which can not be enforced.
The time will come, however, and possibly within the next two years, when public sentiment in the cities as well as in the country, will demand prohibition. The constant violation of Sunday laws, the selling of minnows, and the disregard of all regulatory measures is producing a revolution of sentiment which is rapidly deciding that the American saloon must go. It will be a glad day for the nation when the people arise in their might and say to lawlessness of every description, "You must obey the law." The people of Janesville are to be congratulated on having a mayor who believes in the enforcement of law, and who possesses the courage of conviction.

TOO MUCH REFORM
"When are we going to call a halt on the paternalistic way that has been with us for the past few years. Almost everyone admits the advisability of a certain amount of pure food legislation and its rigid enforcement in the interest of the public health. No such reason can be urged in favor of Assembly Bill No. 586, which provides for a state chemist to enforce the provisions of the law in regard to the composition of paint upon the market. The paint market or any other market of this kind will take care of itself. The manufacturers of articles of this kind are forced to depend on satisfied customers to build up and hold his trade. The manufacturer of a poor grade will be taken care of by competition, he must satisfy his customers or be forced out of business. The people of Wisconsin are not all children. There are still a few things left which they may be trusted to do for themselves and we believe they would rather do it than have any increase in the army of commissioners, game wardens, food experts and etc. already saddled onto them. Give us a rest at least until our backs get accustomed to the present load."

The Monahan Record thus discusses the paint bill referred to now pending in the legislature. Just what pure paint has to do with pure food is a question which the average mortal finds it difficult to comprehend.
The formulation of a patent paint is not only a trade mark, but also becomes a most valuable asset as time and money is spent in placing goods on the market and creating a demand. To make this formula public by law is pure and simple confiscation of property on the socialistic plan which would only be tolerated by the left-over reformers of the late crusade.
The people of the state have been under the dictation of a self-appointed guardian, so long, that some of them have ceased to be free moral agents, and a little coterie of this class are in the legislature attempting to serve intelligent and far-sighted people. "God's patent poor" are not so numerous as they used to be, and it is about time for radical reformers to retire from the field.

DUTY ON SUGAR
The consumption of sugar in the United States last year was 3,185,789 tons. The total importation of raw sugars from foreign countries and insular possessions was 2,241,791 tons, leaving a balance of 943,998 tons as the product of beet and cane sugar factories in the United States. Of this amount the beet sugar factories produced 384,000 tons or about 40,000 tons less than the year before.
The duty on sugar is close to 2 cents per pound, or to be exact, 33.50 per ton on raw sugar. This means that the American people paid sugar duties last year amounting to $77,000,000 for the protection of an industry which to say the least is not on the increase. Mr. Geyer of Pennsylvania recently wrote a letter to Congressman Dazoll protesting against this sugar duty, and in closing said:
"To show you that the principle of imposing taxes on those most able to pay them was not considered when the tariff schedule on sugar was adopted, I quote the following as an example:
Sugar duty, .75¢
Champagne duty, .50¢
Automobiles duty, .45¢
Costly furs duty, .35¢
Expensive feathers and trimmed hats duty, .50¢
Rare paintings, statuary, duty, .20¢
Diamonds duty, .10¢
"One might suppose from this that sugar was a luxury, instead of a necessity."

The "Cherokee strip" in the senate, is the territory between the republican and democratic side of the house, occupied by disgruntled republicans, now known as "progressives." Wisconsin is represented in this doubtful territory by the senior senator, and as he is not burdened with committee work plenty of time is devoted to rattling around like a pea in a pod, and the exercise is duly recorded every week in the new magazine devoted to delecting in general and La Folletteism in particular.

The state collects about $50,000 a year in hunting license fees, and the statement has often been made that game-wardens cost nothing to maintain because they are paid by the men who hunt. The argument looks plausible but the fact remains that the state would be $50,000 ahead if the license money was turned into the treasury, instead of the game-wardens' pockets. Cut down the list and save some money.

Revising the tariff downward, and increasing the revenue at the same time, is the problem which now confronts congress. The fact should not be overlooked that a prohibitive tariff produces no revenue, but simply enriches a few manufacturers at the expense of the people. The only thing that needs protecting today in America is labor. Our industries no longer belong to the infant class, and are able to take care of themselves, but labor should not be compelled to compete with the pauper labor of the old world.

The city attorney should be supported by every law-abiding citizen in his efforts to enforce the law. Businessmen generally respect the law. The saloon-man who persists in violating his contract should be deprived of his license, and he has no cause for complaint.

The labor leaders who interviewed President Taft, the other day, went away disappointed. Mr. Gompers discovered that the president was opposed to class legislation and that he regarded organized labor as a class by itself. Mr. Taft proposes to be the president of all the people, and labor will find no reasonable cause for complaint.

FORMER RESIDENT'S GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Orange Williams, Once Residents of This City, Held Celebration.

Friday in Milwaukee at their home, Mr. and Mrs. Orange Williams, at one time residents of this city, celebrated the anniversary of their golden wedding. Mr. Williams for many years conducted a drug store in the building now occupied by McGee & Busch, but later gave up his business here and travelled on the road, making his home in Milwaukee. Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams are quite well known here.

RIVER GAVE UP BODIES OF TWO

IN RESPONSE TO THUNDER-STORM SUNDAY MORNING.

PHILIP ROGNER DROWNED

On the Night of March 11, and Ralph Thompson of Rockford Lost Life Here Six Weeks Ago.

In response to the terrific thunder-storm which broke not long after Saturday midnight and raged for several hours, the Rock river yesterday gave up its dead. Two bodies came to the surface within the city limits—the body of a man who had been drowned at the foot of the river some distance below Carl F. Brockhaus' residence at 758 South Main street. By these disclosures two mysteries were partially cleared up, though it will probably never be known in either instance whether death by drowning was precipitated or purely accidental. The remains in neither case showed any evidence of violence or foul play and District Attorney J. L. Fisher decided that it would not be necessary to hold any inquests.

First Gruesome Find
It was about eleven o'clock yesterday morning when William Parks, at work upon his boat just south of the new lee-ham, sighted the body of a man floating face-downward on the surface of the stream. Lost no time in communicating with the police and the latter, in company with Undertaker Horatio Scholten, hurried to the scene. The badly bloated and somewhat decomposed body was taken out with considerable difficulty, the weight being about 225 pounds, and removed to Nelson's morgue, where a careful examination was made of the contents of the pockets. Besides a razor, comb, and scissors which proclaimed the unknown man's vocation as a barber, a handkerchief, spectacles, $22.10 in money, and an envelope addressed to "R. H. Thompson, 110 S. Central Ave., Rockford, Ill." and bearing the Chicago date of February 10 were discovered.

Was a Rockford Barber
Over the telephone Chief Ampley immediately narrated the circumstances to Chief Hargrove of Rockford and the latter, after the parents of the dead man at the address mentioned, sent word here that Ralph H. Thompson had been missing six weeks that his parents had supposed him to be wandering about the country in search of employment; and that they would come here to claim the body. George Perkins and others from Brennan & Kenning's barber-shop on West Milwaukee street, after viewing the remains, were quite certain that the man visited their shop about six weeks ago to apply for work and had a long conversation with Bert J. Brennan regarding mutual experiences in town.

Say Death Was Accidental
W. C. Thompson, who is a prosperous butcher at Rockford, his wife, and another son, H. Thompson, arrived here about six o'clock last evening and were registered at the Hotel Myers. It appears from statements made by the father that their son, though an excellent workman, was a victim of the liquor habit and in consequence was frequently out of employment. He was 35 years of age and a wife and daughter reside in Chicago. Though not divorced, husband and wife had separated by mutual consent. Without saying farewell or anything about his parental roof about six weeks ago. It was a rather un-pleasant looking man but the family were used to his peculiar ways and habit of keeping his own counsel, and felt no apprehension until a month or more had passed and no word had been received from him. The entire family was quite certain that he was not a victim of melancholia and that death must have been accidental. They said that he carried no watch and no money found on his person would seem to make any theory of foul play untenable. Whereupon how he fell into the river will doubtless remain a matter of pure conjecture. The body was this morning shipped to Deharu Junction, Iowa, for burial.

Rogner, Mystery Cleared
As the day after yesterday the silent river which has, in recent years, so often gently smothered the careless bather, the sob and moans of tragedy, and terror's vain regrets, yielded up another victim and another half-told tale. Stanley Fisher and Will Brockhaus were paddling a boat in mid-stream, some distance below Carl F. Brockhaus' residence at 758 South Main street, about five o'clock in the afternoon, when they came upon an object calculated to fill the hearts of even sturdy youths with fear and horror. It was a man in a terrible state of decomposition, and after it had been saved ashore there was some delay before the remains could be positively identified as those of the unfortunate plumber, Philip Rogner, whose mysterious disappearance on the night of Thursday, March 11, has been the cause of much uneasy speculation for several weeks.

Money Found on Person
The body was quickly removed to Kimball's morgue where $39.25 in money, a gold watch, two watches, and a ring containing a number of keys, one of them to Fred E. Green's plumbing establishment where he had been employed, were found in the water-soaked garments. As in the case of the unfortunate Rockford man, there were no evidences whatever of violence. Rogner boarded at Fred H. Baumann's home, 615 South Main street, and was slightly under the influence of liquor when Officer Sam Brown, who is the last person who saw him alive, so far as is known, accompanied him to go home and went as far as the Court-house park with him, just before midnight, on the evening of March 11. The only relatives residing in this vicinity are a brother-in-law, Charles Hittcher, and a niece who live at 903 Glen street. The funeral was held this afternoon at two o'clock at Oak Hill cemetery, the services being conducted by Rev. J. H. Tippet at the grave.

Infant Child
After a long illness the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richards of Harmony, Willard Sydney, died yesterday afternoon at three o'clock of pneumonia. The funeral will be held from the home Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

LIGHTNING RAZED CHIMNEY TO ROOF AT REEDER HOME

On Court Street And Occupants Received Severe Shocks From Which They Have Not Yet Recovered.

That terrific crash of thunder which awoke the soundest sleepers about one o'clock Sunday morning followed a lightning bolt which ripped off the projecting portion of the chimney at Attorney Charles W. Reeder's residence, 812 Court street, and scattered the fragments of shattered brick for a distance of three blocks. Some punctured the tin roof and others wrecked the glass in the conservatory. The bolt wreathed off the furnace pipe in the basement, blew out the iron door, and the house was soon filled with soot and gas. It blew out the electric plugs and motor of the lighting system and burned off the insulation on the wires, but this system, nevertheless, to have saved the house from catching fire. Mr. Reeder, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Reeder Ward, and his daughter, Isabel, were all severely shocked and had not completely recovered from the effects of their unpleasant experience this morning. Mr. Reeder had chills all night and his pulse-beat registered but forty for several hours. He was able, however, to be at the office this morning.

PRETTY WEDDING AT C. H. WEIRICK'S HOME

Miss Jennie M. Kirkpatrick United in Marriage to Hubbard W. Stark at Tiffany, Saturday.

Saturday afternoon at five o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Weirick, on Garfield avenue, Miss Jennie M. Kirkpatrick of this city was united in marriage to Hubbard W. Stark of Tiffany, Wis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Tippet of the Carroll Memorial Methodist church. Miss Clara Stark, a sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and LaRue Stark of Delavan, a brother, as best man. The wedding was private and attended only by relatives of the young couple. Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served. The decorations of the home were very pretty and were tastefully arranged.

Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Stark left for Holott and after a honeymoon trip they will make their home in Tiffany, Wis. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kirkpatrick of this city, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Stark of Tiffany. The best wishes of a host of friends are extended to the happy couple.

Among the guests from out of town were: Charles W. Stark of Delavan, Gerald and Marie Stark of Delavan, Mr. and Mrs. Zick of Holott, and Miss Clara Stark of Chicago.

ELLSWORTH CASE ATTRACTS CROWD

DIDWELL AND HILLER TRIALS WILL BE THIS TERM.

THE COURT ROOM IS FILLED

Interested Spectators Listen to Drawing of Jury in This Case This Afternoon.

In the circuit court chambers at two o'clock this afternoon the postponed February jury term was taken up. For various causes the following jurors were excused: George Breese, Frank L. Smith, G. D. Cannon, and J. H. Koehlin of Janesville, W. L. Cowles and Levi Hayward of Holott, Frank Hyne of Union, George Bennett of Lima, and Charles Koehlin of Evansville. The court directed that an additional special venire of fourteen be drawn and Judge Grimm gave instructions to the jurors.

Didwell and Hiller Cases
Attorney Charles Pierce made a request of the court that the trials of the cases against George Didwell and Wm. Hiller, brought from the municipal court on a change of venue, be taken up at this term of court. District Attorney J. L. Fisher interposed objections, declaring that other more serious charges against these men were pending and that the state was not ready to go ahead with the trials at this time. Judge Grimm held that it would be unjust to keep the prisoners in jail until next October and ruled that the cases should go at the foot of the present calendar.

State vs. Ellsworth
The first case taken up was the criminal action of the State vs. Elmer Ellsworth, charged with obtaining $250 from Mrs. Kate Kennedy through the instrumentality of a mysterious rube supposed to have been valued at $1,000, but in reality of trifling worth. In the quota of twelve jurors first called to the box for examination were J. H. McVear, J. P. Wright, G. W. Perkins, George Cox, F. S. Foster, Elmer Holden, Alvin Alder, B. C. Hanson, L. A. Babcock, J. C. Elliott, I. Dearhammer, and William Merrill. At 3:20 this afternoon it seemed probable that a jury would be selected and the examination of witnesses commenced today.

Special Venire
The special venire of fourteen consists of the following: Albert Schnell, S. A. Warner, William Shoemaker, J. H. Fetter, Benjamin Parish, W. H. Douglas, and Warren Haskin of Janesville, Murray Todd of Clinton, W. J. Lathers of Turtle, Frank Miller of Rock, E. J. Phokiger, A. R. Vatte and A. P. Nichols of Holott, and Robert Acheson of Magnolia.

Eighteen Cases
Eighteen cases are notified for trial at this term and the jurors are likely to be busy for three weeks.

Served in Militia
P. H. Koehlin neglected to heed his summons to serve on the jury and was sent for by the sheriff. The court, however, being lenient, excused him on the plea that he served in years in the state militia.

Fast as Nate would arrive in his dory with a cargo of dunnage I'd cart it up to the Berry house and dump it on the piazza. Lord James was flying around, with a face on him as sour as a cranberry pie, opening windows and airing rooms and sweeping out, and the like of that. The old shabang had been shut up for a couple of years and was as musty and damp as a receiving tomb. His lordship looked like the head mourner; this kind of work jarred his dignity.

"Look a-ere, Pratt," says he to me. "Ow long do you think we're going to stay 'ere?"

"Where?" says I, sliding a trunk and a coal had off my shoulders, and mopping my forehead with my shirt sleeve.

"Why 'ere, on this 'orrible and 'sup."

"You want to be careful," says I, "how you call names. This is Ozono Horsefoot Island, and it's a branch station of Paradise. Didn't you hear the boss say so?"

"But 'ow long are we going to stay 'ere?" he says again.

"Well," says I, "when a feller gets to Paradise it's the general idea that he's there for keeps. What are you growling about? Such a nice restful spot, too. Don't you like to be restful?"

He looked at his hands, they were all over blisters from the broom.

"Restful!" he groans. "Good 'enough!"

"Come, James," says Hartley, loafing around the corner, with his hands in his pockets. "Get a move on. We must have this house in order by to-night."

The Twins was awful busy, too. They done the heavy superintending. Hartley superintended the house and piazza and Van Brunt bossed the unloading and trucking of the dunnage from the dory. As for me, I was the truck. After the first day was over I could see that all the natural living I'd done in my time wasn't the real thing at all. Not a circumstance to it.

I carted dunnage all the forenoon. Then I cooked dinner and washed dishes. James was going to help me wipe 'em, but Van's clothes had got wet when he was adrift in the Dora Bassett and they had to be pressed. So I wiped and cleaned up and carted more dunnage, including stove pipe and blankets and flour and quills and nails and sugar, and the land knows what. Then I cooked supper. And how them Paradise tenants did eat!

"By gad, you know!" busts out Van Brunt, with his mouth full; "this is what we've been looking for, Martin. This is getting back to nature."

Hartley granted, being too busy with a fried mackerel to talk with comfort. But it was easy to see he was satisfied. They went on, bragging about how good it was to cut loose from the fight and worry of the Street. At last, according to Van, they realized that life was worth living.

"No more speculation for me," he says, joyful. "No more fretting about margins. I don't give a continental if the bottom drops out of the market and carries the sides with it. I hereby solemnly swear for the fifth time never to buy another share of stock."

Then he reaches after another half-acre slab of my Johnny-cake.

Lord James was upstairs in the sleeping vaults sorting out bed clothes. The sheets and blankets and things was more or less mixed up with the hardware and groceries. I was out in the kitchen getting ready a second relay of mackerel. The dining room door was open, so I could see and hear everything.

"By the way, Martin," says Van, buttering the Johnny-cake, "how did Agnes look? Well?"

"Yes," says Hartley, short.

"She must have been surprised to see you. Did you tell her we were naturalized citizens, or on the road to it?"

"No."

"Not Why not? She probably thinks that we're down here organizing another syndicate. For a girl whose mother is of the world worldly, Agnes has developed queer ideas. I suppose I ought to go over and see her," he went on. "You said she had another girl with her. Who is it?"

"Margaret Talford."

"Talford—Talford? One of the Newport Talfords? Oh, I know. Pretty little girl, dark hair and brown eyes, and—a way with her?"

"I guess so. Very likely. I haven't seen her."

Van seemed to be thinking. "I'll go over to-morrow," he says.

Then he commenced to whoop for more mackerel and 'twas time for me to load up the platter. I thought I'd cooked supper enough for six men, but when the Twins got through I had to fry another ration for me and Lord James. Eat! I never see such sharks in my life.

When they'd finished everything on the table, except the knives and forks and the dishes, the Heavenlies went outside to smoke cigars and promenade up and down the beach. His lordship and I sat down to have a bite ourselves.

"Say," says I, "that Page girl is a good looking, ain't she?"

He was horrified, same as he always was when you mentioned the New York big bugs without getting up and bowing.

"Miss Page," says he, "is a member of one of our first families."

"Want to know," says I. "First in what?"

"First in everything," he says. "Her father was one of our oldest residents."

"No?" says I. "Oldest inhabitant, hey? I suppose he could remember way back afore the town hall was built, and about the hard winter of '38, and how his ma's cousin used to do chores for George Washington."

I know pretty well what he meant, but you see, I liked to stir him up. He was such an innocent critter; always swallowed hook, line and sinker. It done me good to see him stare at me after I said things like this.

All he said now though was "Or-r-r-r-r."

"How about your boss, this Van Brunt?" says I. "He's another first rater, hey?"

The Van Brunts was even more "first families" than the Pages, so the valet said. They'd been there ever since New York was built. 'Twas their ancestors that got up the first barn-raising, or words to that effect.

"And Hartley?" says I.

That was different. The Hartleys was another breed of cats. Martin's dad was born in Chicago or somewhere outside of New York. He'd repented of it, of course, and tried to live it down, but he never had been quite the big apples on the top layer, like the Van Brunts. He was dead now, old man Hartley was; been dead three or four years.

"How about ma?" says I.

She was dead, too; died a year or more ago. Martin was an orphan. And then I inflated it was about time to leave up to all alone.

"What made the Page girl cut loose from him and take up with Van?" I said.

"She don't look like the kind that would be too hard on a chap just because his dad made the mistake of being born out of township limits."

Lord James fidgeted some over that. First he said he didn't know.

"Well," says I, "let's guess then. Guessing's a good Yankee trick and you'd ought to have picked it up by this time. You guess first."

He didn't want to guess, but I kept at him, throwing out all sorts of foolish maybes and perhapesses. Finally he got tired of saying "No."

"Oh, I don't know," says he. "I heard as 'ow 'twas because 'e was too mercenary. 'E was an awful chap in the Street afore 'is old man died. 'E was there night and day. 'Ardly came 'ome at all."

"Humph!" says I. "I'd never suspected it to look at him. Wasn't he doing well at his job?"

Lord James said it wasn't that. Said he was doing mighty well. Folks was calling him a "born financier" and all sorts of names.

"So?" says I. "Then I don't see that Miss Page had any complaints. 'Taint no reason for a young woman to kick because her steady company is making too much money. There's something else. Out with it. I'll keep my mouth shut."

So then he told me a little—much as he knew, I guess likely. Seems that he was acquainted with the feller they call the butler—sort of a steward, I judged he was—over at the Page girl's house. And this butler was sweet on the "maid"—the young woman valet who took care of Agnes' duds and spare rigging. And one night this maid happened to be in the "conservatory"—which I presumed likely was the high-toned name for the preserve closet—and Miss Page and Hartley was in the setting room. And Agnes was laying into Martin for staying downtown and neglecting her.

The maid said she could hear only part of the talk, but 'twas more than average sharp and vinegary. Agnes told Martin he was getting more mercenary every-day he lived. That all he thought of was the office and making money. She detected a mercenary, hard, money-grasping man. Said any, hard, money-grasping man. Said any, hard, money-grasping man. Said any, hard, money-grasping man.

Then Martin he speaks up proud and short and says he has been working hard and had been trying to make money. Said he had a good reason for it, and some day he would tell her what it was. She said he could tell her now or hang his May-baskets on somebody else's door—or words to that effect. He says "Very well," and she says something else, but the maid didn't hear it because just then old lady Page come in and give her her walking papers for listening.

"And so," says Lord James, "the engagement was broke off. And a good thing, too, I say. What's the use of lowering 'erself to marry a man whose father got 'is money in trade?"

"How did Van's dad get his money?" I asks.

"By inheritance," says he. "Of course Mr. Edward dabbles in shares, but Lord love you, only for the fun of it."

"How was the inheritance come in the first place?" says I. He didn't know, but I found out afterwards. Grandpa Van Brunt was an alderman. The Twins come back into the house jawnin'. They come in slapping and jawin'. I judged that the mosquitoes was living the Natural Life too. The Heavenlies set down on each side of the fireplace—I had a wood fire going;

Good Bread—The Secret's Out But Your Grocer has more—WASHBURN-CROSBYS GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

THE VERY HIGHEST QUALITY

just for sociableness—and smoked and talked.

By and by Van rummages out that Natural book and spreads it open.

"Martin," says he, "hark to the voice of the oracle. Come in here, skipper, and improve your mind."

But me and his lordship was improving the dishes just then, and when that was done, he had beds to make and I had bread to mix and fires to lay and wood to chop and a couple of million other chores to do. The Twins read and talked until they got sleepy, which was about half past nine or so; earlier than usual, but neither of 'em had rested well the night afore, I guess. Anyhow, they went upstairs to turn in and I kept on with my work. Lord James turned in too. He had the back bedroom, the one over the kitchen.

'Twas still as still could be. The door and windows was upon and there wasn't a sound except the mosquitoes humming glad and thankful, and the breeze whining in the pines outside and the waves moaning along the bay shore of the island. Once in awhile I'd hear his lordship thrash over in bed and fetch a grunt or a groan in his sleep. He had one of the late Marcellus' cornhusk mattresses, and I wouldn't wonder if there was a cob and or two in his hushes. A rake across the back from a corn cob ain't the most comforting thing in the world even when a feller is used to it, and

Lord James had been brought up tender.

Pretty soon I went to the back door to throw out some fish bones and things and then I heard somebody tramping through the sand up to the house. Neighbors are nearer than snakes' finger-nails 'round Horsefoot Ozono and I couldn't think who was coming at this time of night. I ain't a nervous chap, generally speaking, but I remember how old Marcellus had died in this very house all solo alone, and the short hairs at the back of my neck begun to bristle up. I caltated if anything would fetch a set of codger like Marcellus out of his grave, the doings of the Heavenlies was that thing.

But in a minute more the walker got into the light from the door and I could see him. And I was 'most as much surprised as if he had been Marcellus himself. 'Twas Nate Scudder, with his arms full of bundles.

"What in the nation?" says I.

"Hello, Sol," says he. "Where's the folks?"

"Turned in," says I. "What's up?"

He seemed real disappointed. Set the bundles down on the kitchen table and puffed. That sand is hard walking, and nobody knows it better than I do.

"Turned in so early, have they?" he says. "That's too bad. I wanted to see 'em."

"Want me to roust 'em out?" I asks.

"No, I guess not. But they're nice folks as over I see and I've fetched 'em a few presents."

I tapped into a chair. I was getting used to surprises, but Nate's giving me a present was the biggest wonder yet. I figured that lunacy was catching and we was all going crazy, together.

"Yes," says he. "Me and Huddy Ann's been talking it over. They've hired this house and—and—all the rest of it and we want 'em to like it. Don't want 'em to get tired and leave, you see."

OBITUARY.

Joseph M. Day
The last and tributes to the memory of Joseph M. Day were paid by grieving friends and relatives this afternoon. The services were held from the home at half-past one, the Rev. J. H. Pippert officiating. The funeral was largely attended, many of the old friends and neighbors of Mr. Day coming in from the country. The sprays and other floral designs were bounteous and very beautiful. The remains were taken to the Emerald Grove cemetery for burial. Darby Coen, Elmer Withers, W. J. Jones, Andrew Scott, Cephus Cummings, and Herman Kollogg were the pallbearers.

Theodore Muschell
The funeral services of the late Theodore Muschell were held this afternoon at two o'clock from the home and at St. Paul's Lutheran church at half-past two, the Rev. John Koerner officiating. The funeral was attended by many and the floral offerings were numerous and very handsome. The pallbearers were the sons and sons-in-law of the deceased.

COMMERCIAL CLUB
TO MEET TONIGHT

Business Men Will Discuss Various Questions of Interest And Importance at Hotel Myers.
Tonight at the Hotel Myers the members of the Commercial club of this city will sit down to a banquet, which will be followed by a most interesting discussion of topics of interest to the welfare of the city. The club is working for the best interests of Janesville, trying to boost trade and business in the city. One of the subjects to be considered this evening will be "Railroad Rates"—a discussion on what can be done toward securing better and lower rates on freight into the city. Another topic is the question of providing entertainment for the members of the Rock River Improvement association when they assemble here for the convention next fall. The committee which keeps track of the bills introduced into the legislature, which are of interest to or will vitally affect Janesville, will also make a further report.

Enormous Coal Consumption.
Three gas companies in London consume between them 4,000,000 tons of coal per annum.

FINAL MEETING OF
THE OLD COUNCIL

Will Be Held This Evening—City Treasurer's Annual Report Will Show $112,052.61 Balances.
After its meeting this evening to approve of the bonds of the newly elected officers, the 1908-09 common council will adjourn sine die. It is not expected that any farewell addresses will be offered either by the mourners or the mourned. If the Peddell and Walrath saloon licenses are not revoked, the new council may have to start the proceedings all over again. That final action on the liquor franchise or the milk ordinance will be taken at this session is extremely improbable. There is, however, considerable unfinished business of lesser interest which may come up for consideration. City Treasurer James A. Paterson will submit his annual report which will show the following balances: School fund, $27,945.05; general fund, $6,121.18; fire and water, $5,335.27; lighting, $10,448.08; library, $2,551.73; bridge, $2,346.42; first ward, $2,118.88; second ward, $1,026.80; third ward, $3,000.01; fourth ward, $2,285.71; fifth ward, $1,711.09; new high school bonded debt fund, $3,900; firemen's pension fund, $1,853.98; main outlet power fund, $15,317.31. The grand total of these and other balances is $112,052.61.

Reply to Varsity Critics.
The varieties are not the slinks of iniquity they are sometimes said to be. High spirits and levity are there in abundance, but, considering those few years are the best of one's whole life as far as opportunities for enjoyment and bodily health go, this is not surprising.—Tatler.

To Avoid Friction.

Comfort in Knowledge.
When the world began to exist reason was its mother. He who knows his mother knows that he is her child, and knowing it finds himself out of danger. When he closes his lips and the gates of his feelings at the end of his life he will feel no uneasiness.—Lao-Tse.

Unpopularity of Fasting.
The popular notion is that convalescents must be fed up. The doctor who "starves" a patient is not kindly regarded, notwithstanding the fact that patients have experienced the benefit in their individual cases of a little judicious fasting on occasion.

Making an Orator.

A GREAT SUCCESS

The sale of Rugs, Carpets, Linoleum, Curtains, etc., which began Thursday, April 15, is just what hundreds of people have been looking for. Three days of big selling has proven that the people recognize genuine bargains when put before them in a definite clear manner.

THE RUGS Which we have had made up from our own carpets and borders during the dull season, from remnants and patterns which we cannot get again, we could well afford to mark at the figures we have in order to turn them into money. The people thus are greatly benefitted. It is an unusual opportunity. Fully half of the original lot have been sold. Our present assortment presents a pleasing variety however, in sizes to fit almost any place where you need a rug, in a large range of colors. These rugs we have in Brussels, Velvets, Body Brussels and Wiltons. We mention:
